

Suppose You Could Light Up....

Suppose you had a chemical in you like a firefly and you could light up your belly if you breathed in air. You could make the light stop and start. You could even change how long the light stayed on.

What would you do as a result? How would you use your new “power?” Who would you tell about your ability to light your belly?

Draw a picture of yourself lighting up like a firefly.

Can you think of a story where your ability to create light would protect you? Write it and share it with Lady Lucy
